

A Fibonacci Cluster Predicted the April 2025 Stock Market Crash

And There is Another Fibonacci Cluster Turn Window Coming

This weekend the key analysis we want to share with you is our Proprietary Fibonacci Cluster Turn Window Cycle work. We have found that when there is a cluster of 5 or more prior tops or bottoms that are a Fibonacci number of trading days from a future narrow period of time, a week or so, there is a high probability of a meaningful trend turn, what we call a Fibonacci Cluster turn window. If these arrive at the same time as our Phi mate turn date cycle trend turn indicator, and/or the Bradley model cycle turn date indicator, the turn is likely to be major.

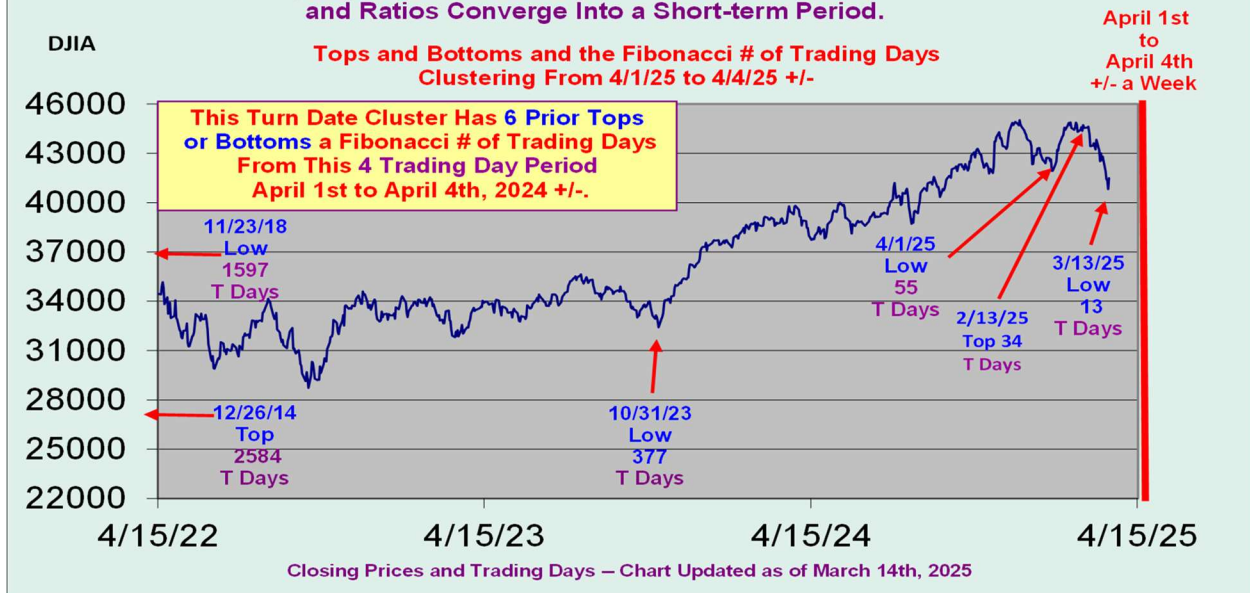

The last Fibonacci Cluster turn window was shown to subscribers two weeks before the stock market crash of April 2nd through April 7th, 2025. We show that below.

We see another approaching Fibonacci Cluster Turn Window, that we reveal to our subscribers in our Weekend Newsletter May 9th, 2024, issue # 5101 at www.technicalindicatorindex.com .

The below chart was presented to subscribers on March 14th, 2025, two weeks before the April 2025 crash, and suggested a major trend turn move was coming in the tight time period window of April 1st through April 4th.

There is a Fibonacci Cluster Turn Window From April 1st to April 4th, 2025 +/-

Significant Turns Often Occur When Fibonacci Numbers
and Ratios Converge Into a Short-term Period.

In that March 14th, 2025 newsletter, we wrote, “It is possible that this could be a significant turn, as it coincides with a Phi mate turn date scheduled for April 3rd +/- a week, and a Bradley model turn date March 24th +/- a week. There is a New Moon on March 29th, which sometimes identifies when tops occur. So, is it possible a corrective rally from the March 13th low will top within this turn cycle period, which will lead to another strong down trend?”

This major decline, in fact happened.

The Fibonacci Cluster Warned of a Strong Decline Coming over a short 4-day time period starting around April 1st.

The Industrials plunged 5,771 points over a short 4-day time period from April 2nd through April 7th, from 42,382 on April 2nd, to 36,611 on April 7th, a 13.6% plunge.

Below, we show the stock market plunge that occurred when the previous Fibonacci Cluster turn indicator suggested was coming. This warning was presented to subscribers two weeks before it occurred, in our March 14th, 2025 Expanded Weekend Newsletter.

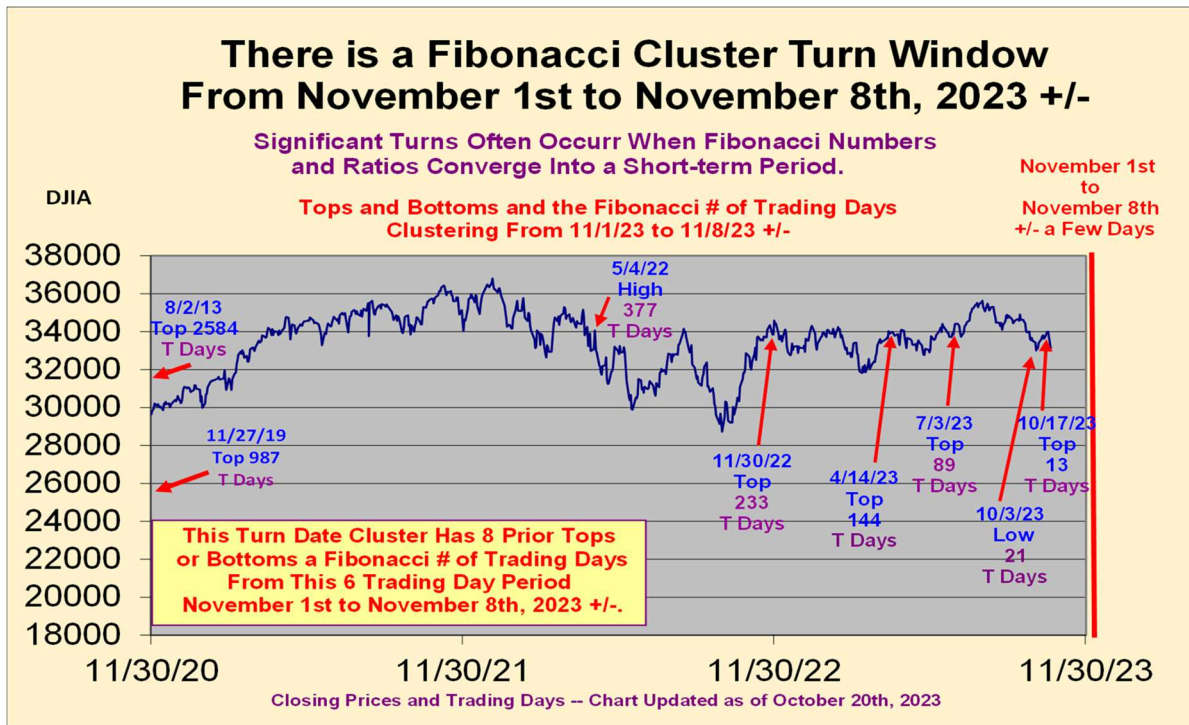

This weekend we present to our subscribers another Fibonacci Cluster Turn window that could be coming to the stock market, and when, shown on page 37.

But how accurate has this study been in the past? Can it be relied upon? Let's go over seven recent times we found a Fibonacci Cluster turn window, and what transpired from these dates. First, let's make the point that in each of these instances, we presented this study and its forecast turn dates at least a few weeks BEFORE the turns happened, so our subscribers could benefit from the heads up. The other point we want to make is we made money in our Platinum program trading from these turns.

Below, we show the original Fib Cluster Turn Window charts that we presented in our subscriber newsletters BEFORE the turns, for these past six instances, and the results of their prescience, so you can see for yourselves in picture format. Sometimes a picture is worth more than verbiage. So here goes:
